COVID-19, AFRICA, AND THE DIASPORA

Please join the Africana Studies and International Studies Virtual Panel on COVID-19 in Africa and the Diaspora, featuring Lauren Anderson, Kalala Ngalamulume, and Nicole Vaughn. The panelists will discuss the socioeconomic effects of COVID-19 on Africa and the Diaspora, and its disproportionate impact on African Americans.

Professor Lauren Anderson teaches in the International and Africana Studies Program at Rowan University. Anderson also serves as a writer and editor for the International Institute on Sustainable (SDG) Development, a Canadian-based think tank, where she tracks SDG implementation.

Professor Kalala Ngalamulume teaches in the History and Africana Studies Department at Bryn Mawr College and Co-Director of Health Studies at Bryn Mawr College.

Professor Nicole Vaughn teaches in the Public Health and Wellness Program in the Department of Health and Exercise Science at Rowan University.

MARCH 24
2021
5PM

Join the meeting:
go.rowan.edu/
covidafricaandthediastrpora

co-sponsored by International Studies and Afridana Studies