

Responding to Title IX Sexual Harassment, Sexual Assault and Sexual Misconduct: A Guide for Responsible Employees

INTRODUCTION

If you are an employee and a student or a colleague has disclosed that they have experienced sexual harassment, sexual assault and sexual misconduct, your response can make a big difference. The Office of Student Equity and Compliance (OSEC) has created this Responsible Employee Reporting Guide in order to aid you in navigating the process.

The following behaviors constitute sexual misconduct and are prohibited under Rowan's Title IX Sexual Harassment/Sexual Assault Policy and/or Student Sexual Misconduct and Harassment Policy. For allegations involving employees see: Policy Prohibiting Discrimination in the Workplace and Educational Environment. For a full list of terms and definitions, please refer to the above policies.

- Sexual Harassment
- Sexual Assault
- Stalking
- Dating Violence
- Domestic violence
- Sexual Exploitation
- Other Sexual Misconduct

All university employees, except those specifically designated as confidential resources (Health Services, Counseling Services), must report to the Title IX Coordinator any incidents of sexual harassment, sexual assault and sexual misconduct. Reports must be made within 24 hours (see page 2, How to Report).

Employees are uniquely positioned to assist students/colleagues experiencing sexual harassment, sexual assault and sexual misconduct because you often see the warning signs - absence from class, decreased productivity, lower grade, social withdrawal - before others.

In responding to disclosures, here are some steps that you can take, though not necessarily in this order.

FREQUENTLY ASKED QUESTIONS

Q

Who is considered a Responsible Employee?

A

All Rowan University employees who are not considered confidential resources (Wellness Center, Student Health Services) are considered Responsible Employees.

Q

Why are employees required to report?

A

Our primary goal is to afford anyone who experiences sexual harassment, sexual assault and sexual misconduct the proper care and resources needed to be safe and to continue to be successful here at Rowan University.

Q

How do I tell someone that I am required to report as a Responsible Employee?

A

Here are some suggested responses that should be clearly stated if you sense a person is about to disclose an incident of sexual misconduct or harassment.

“I am sorry to interrupt you, but I want to let you know that there are a number of situations where I am required to report what you tell me to the Title IX Coordinator or Deputy Title IX Coordinator. I am happy to talk with you, but if you’d like to first explore options with a confidential resource here is a list of numbers you can call”

“It is courageous of you to talk about this and I respect you for reaching out for help. You should know that I must report any sexual violence to our Title IX Coordinator or Deputy Title IX Coordinator. But I can point you to a confidential resource if you like” protect your privacy but depending on what you tell me I may need to inform Title IX Coordinator or Deputy Title IX Coordinator.”

“It is courageous of you to talk about this and I respect you for reaching out for help. You should know that I must report any alleged sexual offense to our Title IX Coordinator or Deputy Title IX Coordinator. But I can point you to a confidential resource if you like”

Q What if the person tells me that they or someone else remains in danger or needs immediate assistance?

A If there is an emergency or a serious and continuing threat to anyone, call 911.

Q What if the person does not want to make a report?

A That is okay. There are many reasons why a person may exercise their right not to make a report. Your job is not to convince them otherwise. Let them know that you are still obligated to report and that they may choose to make a report at a later date.

Q Are there things I can do or say that would help me respond in a more trauma-informed manner?

A Be present. Don't overwhelm someone with information. Instead, let the person take the lead while talking. Remember the information being shared is very personal and traumatic. Remind them that the incident is not their fault. Try to avoid questions that sound like you are questioning their actions (blame) or being directive about what they should do. Ask instead, “How can I help?”...Do you feel safe?”

Q Why should I fulfill my obligations as a Responsible Employee?

A Here is why:

- You help ensure the safety and well - being of the reporting party.
- It is our collective responsibility to take steps to ensure that students, employees and third parties are not subject to a hostile environment in our university programs and activities.
- As an employee of Rowan University, it is required under the policy.

Q What happens after I make a report?

A The Title IX Coordinator/OSEC will reach out to the parties and discuss rights, options, and resources in more detail. Your role is to let the person know that someone will be following up with them.

Q The student told me that they are struggling in their classes, what resource is available to them?

A Supportive/Interim Measures may include, but are not limited to:

- counseling, academic support, mental health services;
- extensions of deadlines or other course-related adjustments;
- modifications of work or class schedules;
- campus escort services;
- mutual restrictions on contact between the parties (no contact directives);
- changes in work or housing locations; leaves of absence; increased security; and other similar measures.
