

301 W. High St – Art Gallery

LOCATION

Main Campus, Glassboro

OPENING Summer 2015

SIZE

- 3-Story
- 23,000 square feet

INCLUDES

- Classrooms
- Faculty offices
- Computer labs
- Student lounge spaces
- Art gallery

COST OF PROJECT

$6.7 million

Professionals involved

ARCHITECTS

SOSH Architects

CONSTRUCTION MANAGEMENT

Eagle Construction Services

PROJECT PLANNING AND DEVELOPMENT

Rowan Facilities, Planning & Operations

Introducing Rowan's new Art Gallery & Academic space

Rowan opens 301 West High Street featuring a new gallery & academic space for Public Relations & Advertising. Rowan bought the building in 2013 for $440,000 and spent more than $6 million designing and reconstructing it inside and out.

The three-story, 15,000+ square foot building features a beautiful new University Art Gallery and is the new home to the Department of Public Relations & Advertising within the College of Communication & Creative Arts (CCCA). It also features classrooms, faculty offices, computer labs and student lounge spaces.

The property has won a prestigious design award, Outstanding Project 2016 from Learning by Design, an architecture magazine. Among the building's most striking features is a wall of glass that rises from street level above the roofline and showcases the building's stairwell. The stairwell is lighted at night, as is a distinctive Rowan torch emblem on the building's High Street side that adds to the borough's developing cityscape and helps build a sense of place.

The new building is about one block from Rowan Boulevard, a $300 million private investment that is transforming the downtown of Glassboro. It serves as an anchor on the west end of a budding Arts & Entertainment district.