More About Michelle

Michelle Mignot (she/her/hers) has been in the field of higher education since 2006. Starting at a community college in Ontario, Canada, Michelle gained experience in career development and online learning as a Career Advisor and Program Coordinator. After moving to the Philadelphia area where she initially worked in the Steinbright Career Development Center at Drexel University, Michelle is now a member of University Advising Services at Rowan University. As a member of the Student Success Technology and Data Analytics team, Michelle provides support for all departments in University College.

Michelle completed her undergraduate studies at McMaster University in Hamilton, Ontario and obtained her Masters in Higher Education from Drexel University. In addition to the Women's Alliance Network, Michelle is also active on campus as a member of the UAS Belonging Committee and is a Rowan University Career Advocate. Michelle has two children and in her spare time enjoys travel, cooking, and hiking.
