More About Gina

Gina is a dedicated higher education professional with a background in administration and communications. At Rowan University, she earned her bachelor's degree in Humanities/Public Relations in the Workplace and went on to complete her master's degree in strategic communications from the Edelman College of Communication & Creative Arts.

Gina began her career at Rowan University School of Osteopathic Medicine in 2011, initially in Academic Affairs, preparing fourth year medical students to interview for residencies. She later transitioned to Faculty Affairs, onboarding volunteer faculty at rotation sites throughout the state. In her current role as senior management assistant in the SOM Dean's Office, Gina is the primary liaison for operations and budgets on campus and coordinates conference and events.

In addition to her professional responsibilities, Gina is actively involved on campus. In addition to serving on the WAN Board, she also is a member of the SOM Wellness Committee and Camaraderie Crew, organizing programs that promote engagement among employees and students.

Outside of work, Gina and her husband Bill enjoy traveling, and cherishes family time with their blended family of four children and two grandchildren.
