More About Mina

Mina Zarfsaz is an interdisciplinary artist, educator, and cultural strategist whose work bridges art, design, technology, sustainability, and community engagement. She is an Assistant Professor of Art at Rowan University, Program Coordinator for Graphic Design, and Director of the Institute for Innovative Material, Media and Design (IMMaD). In these roles, she leads curriculum development, student-centered initiatives, interdisciplinary partnerships, and creative projects that expand access to design, emerging media, and public-facing arts education.

Her work centers collaboration, inclusive pedagogy, and the use of creative practice as a tool for civic engagement, environmental awareness, and cultural dialogue. She is honored to join the Women's Alliance Network Advisory Board and looks forward to contributing to its work in mentorship, advocacy, leadership, and community-building across Rowan.
