

Rowan University Water Testing Results

September 9, 2016

On Sept. 5, Rowan University notified its employees and students that elevated levels of lead were found in five of six buildings tested in August—see rowan.edu/waterquality. One of several preliminary measures taken to address the concern was to collect “grab samples” from the balance of buildings on campus. Although it does not meet standard protocols for water testing, a grab sample captures water as soon as the water flows from the faucet, simulating typical habits of many when taking a drink from a water fountain or faucet.

RESULTS The buildings colored GREEN on this map had samples that registered below 15ppb, the EPA’s threshold for taking action to remediate the lead level. The YELLOW buildings registered above 15ppb. The YELLOW and GREEN-striped building samples registered above and below the federal threshold for action.

NEXT STEP Rowan will conduct comprehensive lead testing over the entire campus during the next several months.
